

September 11, 2001

There was no shortage of death and misery
On the tragic morning of 11 September,
When Ignorance and Hate killed indiscriminately,
And leveled the towers of the World Trade Center.

And the Pentagon burned beneath blue skies,
For it, too, was attacked on September 11;
And to save others, heroes gave their own lives;
And over 3,000 innocent souls went to Heaven.
